What to submit

Up to eight examples of work by the student, explanatory notes and/or project assignment may be included. One example may be an outside project or internship. However the remaining work must be completed as part of coursework at MCAD in order to give everyone equal opportunities. All work done as part of a series may be included as one work (e.g., a single assignment that has a solution presented on three boards). Students are encouraged to demonstrate process on one project. One group project may be included.

Students may, at their discretion, submit a research paper done for a theory or methods class in addition to the eight examples of work listed above. Screen based work should be submitted to the Merits server (see directions below), by Monday, February 27, 8 a.m. Other work not suitable for hanging should be submitted to the Merits server by this same deadline. In any case, the inclusion of such work should be noted with the work displayed. Please see the archiving standard on the intranet. <http://kb.mcad.edu/index.php?article=166>

Above all else, work should be the best possible work that you have done and shown clearly in the best manner. Excessive or elaborate displays are discouraged; the judging will be done on the quality of the work. Film and video may be included. No personal presentations are allowed.

Students are encouraged to discuss and review their portfolios with faculty members.
