Description and Overview for the Creative Writing Minor

MCAD's creative writing minor allows you to focus on the specific writing skills and practices you will need to begin a career that will likely incorporate a significant writing component. There is demand for good writers in every field, and skills in this area will serve you well no matter what you choose to do.

Within the minor you may choose to emphasize nonfiction writing, creative writing, or business writing. Whichever path you choose, clear, coherent, concise, and informative writing will support your artistic practice or entrepreneurial ventures.

Learning Objectives for the Creative Writing Minor

- Develop as individual writers through practice and critique
- Gain a familiarity with writing in multiple genres
- Conduct research and report results in a written narrative format
- Gain experience writing in an advanced writing workshop
- Gain awareness and appreciation of writing as a critical and creative way of viewing the world
